Location: Third Space, in the INScap Building (in the International District, 815 Airport Way S.)*

Cost: $5 - $100 (however much you'd like to donate would be great!)

All funds go to support the work of Pin@y sa Seattle

The Enemy, a documentary created entirely by the Filipino filmmakers' collective Southern Tagalog Exposure, fearlessly exposes US imperialism as the root of oppression and poverty in Philippine society. The work seeks to arouse audiences to understand and be one with the struggle of the Filipino people, past and present, for a country and a world that is free from the shackles of imperialism.

The film takes a close look at the role racism has continued to play in the imperialist relationship between the United States and the Philippines, with a critical examination of the oppression faced by Muslim and Indigenous peoples in the Philippines under the U.S.-led War on Terror.

*Directions: The Third Space is on the ground floor, back side, at the INScap Building – 815 Airport Way S. Third Space is, conveniently, the third space over on the building's back side (there will be signs). INScap is south of Uwajimaya, across Airport Way from a Shell Station. By car, it's best reached by turning from Jackson onto 5th Ave. heading south (away from downtown). Follow 5th Ave. three blocks, then take the soft left onto Airport Way, then an immediate right into the building's driveway. We have free parking behind the building! By bus, we're a short walk from the International District tunnel stop.
